Story 1

The Armidale School's new Principal, Ray Pearson, is excited to take on the role, and lead the school through its next phase.

Mr Pearson says he's got the great honour of leading the school and developing the next strategic plan, which requires consultation and engagement with the community, internal stakeholders of students, staff, parents, and old Armidalians, and working with them to develop a vision and road map on where they see the school being in five to ten years' time.

He says the great schools know who they are and what their identity is, so staying true to that and being unified in knowing what a TAS education entails is a real advantage and ensures they can continue to be a progressive school.
